

RAMBAM DAY SCHOOL

CHALLENGING ACADEMICS | CORE VALUES | LEADERSHIP

Dear Parents,

Quality time is defined as a reference to time spent with close family (children), partners or friends that is in some way important, special, productive or profitable. It is time that is set aside for paying full and undivided attention to the person or matter at hand.

Every parent should want to spend some amount of quality time with their child(dren) every day if possible. School age children are so busy with HW and after school activities, that it is challenging to spend time with our kids; however, let me tell you a little secret. Your child will remember you came to all their games, and that's a wonderful memory but just know, that's not quality time with your child. Quality time is time that is set aside for paying full and undivided attention to the person or matter at hand.

Now, let's look into another topic and then see how the two can go together; quality time and Homework. Why Do Teachers Assign Homework? Teachers assign homework for many reasons. Homework can help their students review and practice what they've covered in class; get ready for the next day's class; learn to use resources, such as libraries, reference materials and computer Web sites to find information about a subject; explore subjects more fully than classroom time permits; extend learning by applying skills they already have to new situations; and integrate their learning by applying many different skills to a single task, such as book reports or science projects.

Homework can also help students to develop good study habits and positive attitudes. It can teach them to work independently; and it encourages self-discipline and responsibility.

In addition, homework can help create greater understanding between families and teachers and provide opportunities for increased communication. Monitoring homework keeps families informed about what their children are learning and about the policies and programs of the teacher and the school.

Does Homework Help Children Learn? In the early grades, homework can help children to develop good study habits and positive attitudes. From third through sixth grades, homework, gradually increased each year, may support improved school achievement. In seventh grade and beyond, students who complete more homework score better on standardized tests and earn better grades, on the average, than do students who do less homework. The difference in test scores and grades between students who do more homework and those who do less increases as students move up through the grades.

Homework is a great opportunity for spending time with your child. Not doing the HW for them, but giving support, being available if assistance is needed.

Quality time and homework can beautifully go hand in hand .

Thanks for you support!!

First Grade News

Reading is an essential skill learned in first grade. Although my students are in the early stages of developing their reading skills, their enthusiasm for reading books is evident and inspiring! Some of their excitement for books comes from having a peer who will read to them. With the weekly help from third grade "Reading Buddies," my students see how much fun it is to read with a friend. Third grade does a wonderful job of modeling the joy and skills of reading.

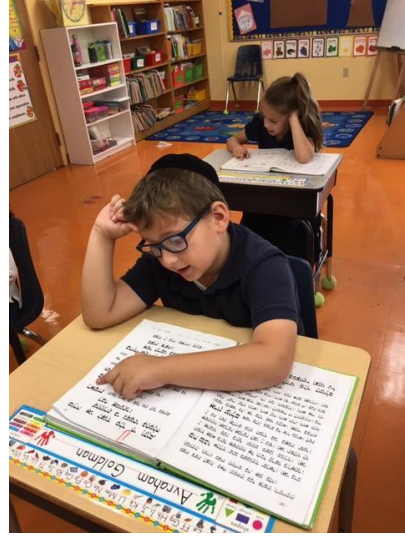

Retired Rambam teacher, Mrs. Debbie Rotkow, volunteers her time and love of reading to help instill a curiosity for the written word in our students. When she reads to them, the words just leap off the pages and captivate the students with their magic! Her love of language and reading is contagious!"

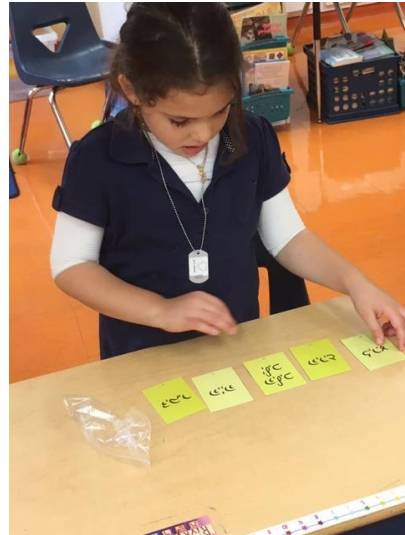

Kittah Alef is working hard! We have completed our review of the different nikudos/vowels and have now begun to perfect our Hebrew reading skills by practicing the davening/prayers. We just received a book to help us on this journey in which we can practice following along inside as we daven! This is a great way to get ready for our Very first Siddur that we will receive in a short time!!
I am so proud of my first graders!

2nd Grade News

The second grade has started their shorash flashcards. They are very excited for this new program. They already know 10 shorashim (The roots of Hebrew words). How many shorashim will they learn this year? We will find out.

Third Grade News

Third grade has been having fun in science. We conducted several experiments to demonstrate the concepts about force. One experiment showed the stronger the force applied on a toy car, the farther it will go in a shorter amount of time. We also learned about magnetism and how magnets can apply force on an object without touching it. We built an electromagnet and saw how it was able to attract paperclips when the circuit was closed.

Along with our regular weekly schedule of learning, we have spent time over the last two weeks emphasizing the area of kindness. In our Chumash studies we have been learning about Eliezer looking for a bride for Yizchak and how Eliezer emphasized the need to find the right young lady; a young lady that did Chesed (Kindness). As we know, he found Rivkah who showed that she truly was a doer of Chesed (Kindness).

The students were given special booklets in which they were asked to write down all the kind acts they have done over the last 2 weeks. Through this activity, they will see how much good they have done and how easy it can be to do acts of Kindness.

Fourth Grade News

The spotlight shines brightly on a specific, Fourth Grader each week. That certain someone is called our Star of the Week. The Star of the Week is chosen by random drawing on Fridays for the next week. The Star has the opportunity each day to “show and tell.” He/she can bring in baby pictures, family photos, collections, awards, medals, and other personal treasures to share with the class. The students ask questions to find out more about their classmate. We are enjoying this “enlightening” experience!

Caught in Action..

During a rainy day last week, Michael Stoltzman was caught helping Shani Rabhan disentangle her umbrella from the chain link fence.
